Apex College Prep Launches Comprehensive Program for Foreign Students

Walnut Creek, Calif. -- Apex College Prep introduces Apex Uhak, a comprehensive, year-long program designed to facilitate study in the United States for foreign students. Apex College Prep Director Julie Yi created Apex Uhak, which incorporates all aspects of studying and living abroad to accommodate the growing numbers of students from foreign countries studying in America.

Apex Uhak provides strong support system and academic resources that helps students maximize their study abroad experience. First, students receive admissions counseling that guides them through the application process to private schools in the San Francisco Bay Area. Once students arrive in the United States, they are welcomed by a carefully-screened host family, which takes care of all of their needs, including room, board, guardians and transportation.

To make the most of their academic experiences, students participate in Apex College Prep's Homework Club, where Apex tutors assist them with schoolwork in all subjects. On weekends, students receive additional instruction in preparation for the SAT, focusing on mastering critical reading, writing and mathematics skills.

For those who are unable to commit to a full academic year, Apex Uhak also sponsors students interested in intensive summer and winter camps and provides them with all the same benefits as the year-long program.

More information about the Apex Uhak programs is available by contacting Director Julie Yi at 925-930-8255 or Julie@apexcollegeprep.com.
